RENO, NEVADA August 16, 2007 -- CBay Systems and Services, Inc., The Association for Healthcare Documentation Integrity (AHDI), and InterFix Ventures, LLC (Atlanta, GA) announce the single largest international medical documentation quality initiative to date, as CBay agrees to adopt and integrate the AHDI BenchMark Knowledge Base into all systems worldwide.

"CBay has long been at the leading edge of quality and providing tools for medical transcriptionists, editors, and quality assurance staff who improve every aspect of patient safety," stated Christopher Foley, president of CBay Systems. "The BenchMark Knowledge Base will give our MTs and our company a significant competitive advantage in the marketplace by giving our workers the very best real-time medical information available every day, as well as offering real-time access to the AHDI Help Desk and to association initiatives, research, and standards."

The BenchMark Knowledge Base and Information Portal project between AHDI and InterFix Ventures provides web services access to best-of-breed tools, including medical dictionary, physician databases, English dictionary, and spelling and quality improvement tools, with the bonus of electronic membership in AHDI. "Working with the knowledge base experts at AHDI has yielded significant insight in to how technology can be used more effectively in reducing medical errors and increasing patient safety across the board," stated Scott Faulkner, chief executive officer at InterFix, "which we believe will provide a strong basis for improving the entire process of transcription as we do what can be done to control healthcare delivery costs."

"We are delighted that CBay systems will by this single action expand the membership base of AHDI by almost 6000 members. Their acknowledgment that the KB project has significant value to both their customers and MTs is further evidence that quality must be driven to the workstation level through the use of standardized data and documentation formats," stated AHDI Chief Executive Officer Peter Preziosi, PhD, CAE.

The Association for Healthcare Documentation Integrity (AHDI) has been the professional organization representing medical transcriptionists since 1978. AHDI sets standards of practice and education for medical transcriptionists, administers a certification program, has established a code of ethics, and advocates on behalf of the profession.
